Manoeuvring for Position

A full house for the IMP Pairs

After 5 rounds Japan has stormed to the top of the Open Teams, already establishing a substantial lead over China and Chinese Taipei. Then come Australia, Thailand and Philippines.

In the Ladies series Japan is emulating the performance of its Open Team, although their advantage is not so substantial. Indonesia is second, just ahead of Chinese Taipei. These three are followed by China, New Zealand and Singapore.

Australia-Australia are atop the Senior Teams, followed by China HK - Tse and Indonesia. Then its Australia-Lusk, Thailand-Magic Eyes and Chinese Taipei.

Championship Diary

In the USBF trials for Bali Kranyak has taken every set of the final that will select USA I to lead Fleisher 132-49.

In the race to become USA II Diamond defeated Spector 123-86 and they meet Nickell, who trailed Gordon 70-99 with only ten deals to play, but staged a typical charge, outscoring their opponents 48-1 over the remaining boards. The winners of this match will meet the losing team from the USA I final. Watch this space!

Our Scoring Manager Shu Hang set off from China only to discover on reaching the border that he had left his identity card at home (yes, he had flown). He got a flight back, collected the card and took off for the third time in a day.

Several people have suggested that the dragon depicted on yesterday's front cover was in fact a lion. Perhaps, but there are two observations worth making - one should never let the facts stand in the way of a good story, and they may be thinking of the British Lions, who played their opening match in Hong Kong just a few days ago.

In the BFAME Championships India lead from Bangladesh in both the Open and Senior Teams, while India and Pakistan are tied at the top of the Women's teams.

A Matter of Convention

In the ongoing USBF Trials for Bali Nickell staged a typical comeback win against Gordon. This was the decisive deal:

The defenders started with three rounds of hearts, but declarer ruffed high, crossed to dummy with a club and played a spade, +140 and 13 IMPs to Nickell

The modern style of bidding does not quite approximate to 'bid when it's your turn' but it is very much the norm to open with the type of hand that North holds. Having said that there is no compelling reason for North to bid 4♠ on the next round, although no doubt South would have doubled and North would have bid 4♠.

East led the ace of hearts and continued the suit. Declarer ruffed and played the jack of spades. When that held he continued with the eight of spades, putting up dummy's king when East discarded the five of hearts. West ducked, and now declarer played three rounds of clubs, followed by the ace of diamonds and a diamond. East won, cashed the king of diamonds and exited with a heart. Declarer should ruff that in dummy, but when he discarded a diamond and ruffed in hand West took the last two tricks for two down, -100.

Having shown his hand North respected his partner's decision to only bid 3♠.

South led the king of spades and declarer won with dummy's ace and played a diamond to the king. A heart to the king was followed by a diamond, but North put up the ace and switched to the four of clubs for one down, +50 and 4 IMPs to China Hong Kong Tse.

3♥ Good raise in spades

I can't quite decipher the meaning of 2♠ from the convention card (by the way these are some of the best I have ever seen at a major championship!) However, it's not clear that EW were 100% certain of what was happening. 3♦ was comfortable, +130 and 5 IMPs to China Evertrust.

Imagine the auction had gone: INT-2♣*-2♦*-3♣*-3♥-3NT - what would you lead as North?

Let's assume you think 3♥ shows a stopper in hearts and decide to lead the ten (or nine) of spades. Declarer takes your partner's queen with the ace, crosses to the ace of diamonds and runs the queen of clubs to your king. Now it should be clear to switch to hearts. You know partner does not have the ♠KQJ and he cannot have six spades as he would have opened with a weak two (or multi).

East might have simply bid 3NT at his second turn, but that contract should have no real chance after three rounds of spades.

North led the ace of spades and continued with the ten, declarer putting up dummy's queen, South winning with the king and switching to the five of clubs.

Declarer won with dummy's queen, cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club. Then he played the queen of diamonds (the jack is a little more subtle). North covered with the king and declarer won with the ace and played a diamond to the eight. North won with the ten and returned a spade, ruffed and overruffed.

Declarer cashed his trumps, squeezing South in hearts and clubs for one down, -100. Had declarer negotiated the trump suit that same squeeze would have delivered the game going trick.

The defenders started with three rounds of spades and declarer won and played ace of diamonds and a diamond. North won and cashed out for one down and a flat board.

There is a mildly double dummy line to get home - declarer plays two rounds of hearts ending in dummy then runs the queen of diamonds. When that holds a club finesse is followed by a heart and declarer has eight tricks.

I don't think you would too unhappy to reach 7♣. It is cold if the trumps are 2-2 and if they are 3-1 you still have chances in the diamond suit, and depending on the opening lead you may also be able to develop some additional squeeze possibilities.

1♣ 2+, 11+

As soon as the spade fit came to light East was off to the races (they are quite good at the Hong Kong Jockey Club). However, North was happy to express an opinion as to the merits of the spade game.

He cashed the ace of hearts and switched to his diamond. Declarer won in dummy and ran the ten of spades. North won and exited with the queen of clubs. Declarer pitched a heart from dummy and won in hand with the king. He cashed the ace of spades, South discarding a heart, and played the ten of diamonds. North pitched a club and declarer cashed the king of spades and then played a diamond. North ruffed and played the ace of clubs. Declarer could ruff in dummy, but could not avoid losing a club at the end, one down, -100 and 4 IMPs to Indonesia.

Having been warned by North's double that the trumps were not breaking declarer should play a spade to the ace at trick three. Then he plays a diamond. Say North discards, ruffs the next diamond and exits with a trump. Declarer wins, ruffs a club and plays a diamond. North can ruff, but that will be the last trick for the defence. It does not help North to discard, as he will inevitably develop an extra trick for declarer.

4♥ Texas for spades

South's tactical move in the bidding saw West double. As West could bid 4♠ or 4NT for takeout should the immediate double show a desire to defend 4♠ doubled or does it suggest a lot of hearts? What does a pass followed by a double of North's 4♠ show? When North passes the double should East pass to show some hearts?

It's not an everyday situation, but it is worthy of discussion.

When East showed his values via a cue bid West tried a natural 4NT, and East's next bid was either a response to Blackwood (on the basis that the double had shown hearts) or an attempt to play in a suit East thought West had - or none of the above.

South led the jack of diamonds and North won with the ace and returned the five. Declarer took the king, played a spade to the ace, pitched a diamond on the king of spades and ran the queen of clubs to South's king. Declarer ruffed the diamond return, played a club to the jack and a heart, covered by the jack and king, South discarding a spade. Declarer played the ace of clubs, and North ruffed and had only to play the queen of spades to ensure +800.

When he exited with the queen of hearts declarer could win with dummy's ace, play a heart to the ten and pitch a spade on the ten of clubs as North ruffed. That was two down, -500 and 9 IMPs to Indonesia.

The BBO Files

The man who must be a heavy favourite to have watched the most bridge deals in a lifetime, must be Denmark's Roland Wald, the famous coordinator of Bridge Base Online, the world's top viewing site. In the run up to Bali he reports that the current record for spectators at a single table is 6,252 (Bermuda Bowl Final last segment Monte Carlo 2003). At the time there was a limit at 9,999 users online. That was reached and no one knows how many were unable to log in. Today the limit is 30,000, so that problem no longer exists, at least not for a while. Peak time is Sunday around 20:00 GMT where there are often 20,000+ logins at the same time. The record stands at 20,781.

At the end of May 2011 another record fell, when there were 18 simultaneous broadcasts with tables from seven nations. Until 2005 the limit was 12 tables, but now up to 32 can be accommodated.

Roland has been in charge of VuGraph coordination for BBO since the beginning in the autumn of 2001, where broadcasts were few and far between. This has increased dramatically year after year, and in 2010 there were 302 days with presentations. That should be history when 2013 is over.
